About Tongji and Tongji SEM

Since its establishment in 1907, Tongji University has emerged as one of China's premier public universities, housing a vibrant student community of approximately 35,000. The university offers a comprehensive array of undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral programs spanning numerous disciplines, including technology, business, architecture, science, medicine, law, social sciences, and foreign languages. Tongji SEM, adorned with esteemed accreditations from AACSB, EQUIS, CAMEA, and PMI-GAC, is a leading institution in China, attracting global students to pursue their Bachelor's, Master's, and Doctoral degrees. Additionally, the school offers exceptional Executive MBA and Executive Education programs tailored to cater to top corporate executives. Now it comprises eight departments and one research institute, namely, the Advanced Institute of Business (AIB).

About AIB

Founded in 2017, AIB serves as an academic beacon committed to advancing world-class economics and management disciplines. Operating under the aegis of Tongji SEM, AIB maintains autonomy in its teaching and research teams, talent education, and administrative support frameworks. By fostering innovative minds, generating cutting-edge academic outputs, and promoting international collaborations, AIB plays a pivotal role in propelling the development and enhancement of economics and management disciplines through the exploration of innovative discipline-building methodologies and institutional advancements. Our faculty boasts academic degrees from esteemed institutions such as the Wharton School, Michigan University, Cornell, Dartmouth College, Purdue, and Minnesota.
